

Greetings!

Here comes a new lesson – finally, after surfacing from the spring and summer stress connected with construction on the land. I am sorry that this got somewhat out of sight during the building process and the “work” with the construction people.

Now to the lesson

We discern between righteousness und self-righteousness. Or at least I hope we do.

I put these two terms before you for contemplation – they are meaningful in respect to causes and consequences in your life.

When and how do you recognize righteousness respectively self-righteousness in yourself or others?
What is the essential difference?

I would like to hear about your experiences – or rather I would love to have an exchange about it. **

Remembering the everlasting love in all of us I give thanks and wave to you from the sunny but frosty Montana.

Christa

 Is one of you prepared to create a web site for Living Spring in the internet? A name has already been registered by Sara, but it looks like she will not have the time to work on it. If you can, please contact me.
